'Our Town' in 2-Week Stay at Frederic Burk

Your State Theatre became "Our Town" last night as the drama department's final offering of the semester opened for a two week-end production. The Thornton Wilder play will continue again tonight and tomorrow evenings at 8:30 p.m. in Frederic Burk auditorium. Performances are also scheduled for next Thursday, Friday, and Saturday evenings, May 14, 15, and 16.

Tickets for the production are now on sale in the drama office, AA 11. Prices are 60 cents for students, and 90 cents general admission.

State Theatre has no intention of ignoring the traditional, and the novelty of this work will once again be complete abandonment of scenery. The stage characters will be forced to display their pantomimic talents in creating properties, streets, drawing rooms, and churches.

Describing the results of such a return to the bare essentials of creative artistry, Brad Aronson, assistant director, commented, "State Theatre will provide the people; the audience will provide the town."

An exceptionally large cast, under the direction of Dr. J. Fenton MacKenna, will be headlined by Dick Frewin, Virginia Chesse, John Natale, Bob McClay, Jack Hohensee, Ted Samuel, Gary Hughes, Karen Lagergren, Dion Chesse, H. Alan Sims, Shirley Chambers, Jackie Faas, Carol Combs, Ed Hosack, and Bill Hastings.

SUMMER SCHOOL OR NO G.I. BILL

Failure of veteran teachers and June graduates to attend summer school five or more weeks during consecutive years will result in the loss of all G.I. benefits. The course pursued during summer school must be one leading to a degree or a credential.

Any student who is finishing school this year and wishes to go on to a higher degree must fill out a Request of Change of Course before the end of the spring semester.

As this is of paramount importance to all graduate veterans, it is recommended that they contact the V.A. downtown.

EDITORIAL

Fair Was a Success, But...

State Fair, amazingly enough, was not a failure. Nor was it the conspicuous success it might have been.

Only the resourcefulness, administration, and enthusiasm of Bert Phillips and his State Fair committee prevented a fiasco. As it turned out, the fair was the most successful enterprise of its nature ever presented here.

Everyone, with the exception of faculty and students, cooperated.

Henry Stoneson contributed an entire Stonestown building for display purposes; 37 businesses offered prizes in the scrip books; the Emporium, Atkin's, and several other Stonestown stores provided their showcases. The faculty, perfectly aware of the fact that any fair is built upon its exhibits, preferred to let others do it. With the exception of a huge Creative Arts exhibit and a Language Arts booth, there was nothing.

The general student body, especially dismissed from class at 11 a.m. Friday, went home. On the whole, the fair seemed better attended by outsiders than by students.

Other unforeseeable factors—broken promises, lack of responsibility, mistakes in timing, heavy winds—all took away from the success the fair might have been. Heavy evening attendance balanced empty fairgrounds in the afternoons and allowed a nice financial profit.

But,

What is the effect upon the community when visitors observe an apathetic response within the college itself? Looking at the situation only from a public relations standpoint, does such a response reflect favorably upon the S.F. State B.A., credential, or faculty standing?

Next spring there will be no State Fair; in its place the college will present the New Campus Dedication celebration. Perhaps now is the time for the faculty, the Associated Students, and the general student body to plan for it.

Co-op Idyl: Game Student Aims toward Gaining Rest from Warden's Watchful Eye

By LAURA BOTARRO

12:04; I walked into the unusually deserted Co-op—something was up! I slid along the wall to the corner and gave the joint the once over. There she was! The warden was guarding the entrance. I had to get in; I was on the lam; I'd just cut a class.

12:06; I leaned against the wall. I had to get an idea—I had to think.

12:32; I had it! If I could only get my mitts on that five day old sandwich they'd been passing around, I could get in (she'd never know the difference—the French rolls are always hard anyway). Too bad the guy who rents it out for five cents wasn't around.

12:37; I had to try routine 1052; there was no other choice. I was scared; I couldn't let them know that I'd be finished. I ordered a double shot as usual (I like a little coffee with my cream). She looked at me and I knew that the game was up. "What else, senorita?" she said. I took out eight coppers and said, "I ate lunch already, just want another cup of coffee." No soap.

12:49; I saw my chance—they were moving a piano in the back of the Co-op. They had to open the door to get it out! I ran down the stairs and stood in the rain waiting for the door to be opened.

1:15; They were moving the piano IN, not out.

1:17; Things were getting tough. Then I saw it—a full tray! I sidled up to the rich guy (he had meat, coffee, and desert too —what luxury!). "Buster, canya spare the desert and coffee tillya get past the Warden?" I asked. He cased the joint and whispered out of the corner of his mouth, "I'd like ta help ya, kid, but the warden's murder." I tripped him.

1:25; I finally gave up. I count-out the change I had stolen from my little brother's piggy bank. All I had was 25 cents. I knew then what I had to do.

1:28; I walked up to the line and got apple pie and coffee. So I would have to walk home tonight. Six miles isn't too bad.

1:31; Had a smirk on my face —gonna show the warden a thing or two. No warden? No limit after 1:30? 1:31 now? Gave myself coffee shampoo—take bath tonight—off Golden Gate bridge!

Meanwhile, in another room, Conrad Grodsky was taking part in a Trusteeship committee caucus. Mr. Grodsky proved instrumental in the later passage of Southwest Africa coming under control of the Trust Territory.

Many of the meetings continued late on into the early hours of the morning. Khalid Abdullah and Denny Woodford were present in a caucus of the Economic and Social Council in order to state our views on resolutions. This was done despite the fact that we were not members of the ECOSAC.

Friday morning the first plenary session of the General Assembly convened. Formally adopting the agenda for the conclave, and ironing out some of the procedural problems, the group worked the rest of the

Model U.N. Session

Meeting in Wheeler Hall, the Security Council confers on the "Surprise issue" introduced in the General Assembly. Lillian Katz, State student, holds a seat on the council representing Pakistan. morning on the floor of the assembly.

Mr. Wainhouse, senior adviser to the United States delegation in the actual United Nations on political matters, was elected president of the General Assembly.

Moving into the committee meetings on Friday afternoon, Pakistan members were found in the political and security committee the trusteeship committee, the economic and social council, and the security council.

Taking an active part in all these various committee meetings were Khalid Abdullah, Denny Woodford, Conrad Grodsky, Carol Noah, Al Nathan, Allen Henderson, Lillian Katz, Nazir Ahmed, and Tom Schaefer.

During the Friday afternoon session of the General Assembly, a "surprise issue" was introduced. Stopping the proceedings on the floor, Mr. Wainhouse, guest secretary-general of the Assembly, read a telegram from the British Commonwealth.

In part, the telegram read: "The United Kingdom delegation has been informed that Egypt has invaded Sudan and attacked the British troops garrisoned in the Suez Canal early this morning, April 17, 1953. Egypt has violated the treaty arrangements concluded between Her Majesty's government and the government of Egypt.

"Her Majesty's government wishes to inform the General Assembly that it intends to defend its rights in the area under attack . . ."

Adjourning the Assembly for the emergency, the security council went into an immediate session. Since Pakistan is a member of the British Commonwealth, but at the same time a Muslim nation, it placed us in a very difficult position.

At an early hour in the morning, a resolution was passed calling for an immediate cease-fire. The Pakistan delegation drew up another resolution calling for a fact-finding commission of five member nations to go to the area in dispute and bring back a report to the Assembly.

The Assembly passed the resolution but with one amendment. Yugoslavia was not acceptable to the Soviet delegation to serve on the five man commission. Pakistan compromised and incorporated their own nation in the amendment, with the resolution passing unanimously.

Acting as secretary, Carol Noah made sure that all resolutions were mimeographed and distributed to other delegations, keeping a diary of the events each day. The entire conference notes will be published by the International Relations Club.

Bats Silenced as Gator Nine Drops Decisions to Dons and Spartans

By LeROY PACINI

The San Francisco State Golden Gators, now tarnished, finally fell apart at the seams last Thursday, May 7, to lose an unmistakable 20-3 decision to a fired up University of San Francisco crew.

In their last several games, the Gators had been promising to hit the skids. They had lost several close ones in a row, two of them to the same San Francisco Dons, and it was apparent they wouldn't last the season without a good drubbing.

This was it. On the last game of the season they got clobbered, but good. Three errors which produced five runs in the first inning got the Gator boys off on the wrong foot. After that it was easy for the Dons. The Staters couldn't hit or field. When even their ace, Joel Heckman, who had relieved Jerry Pandolfi in the third inning, couldn't hold the rampaging Dons, you knew the Gators had had it. Roger Martin took over for Heckman in the sixth and fared no better.

A determined San Jose State and an even more determined lefthander by the name of Johnnie Oldham gained revenge over State's proud Golden Gators last Saturday.

San Jose, by the scores 6-2 and 14-9, reversed a recent doubleheader defeat at the hands of the Gators. Johnnie Oldham got even on the sassy State crew, who had beat him twice in that doubleheader defeat, by tossing a four hitter at them in the first game.

The Gators were never in contention. The first game found Jerry Pandolfi throwing good ball at the Spartans, but Oldham throwing better. Big John was wild but effective. He struck out 11 Gators, walked nine of them, and had one wild pitch chalked against him.

The second game found Spartan righthander John Kaufman staggering through all nine innings and getting clobbered for seven hits and nine runs, but still winning. Kaufman struck out three batters and walked four.

Russ Rounavaara was the highlight of the Gators on this gloomy day. He cracked out three singles in four trips to the plate, drove in a run, and tallied two.

Dances Are Feature of Weekend Social Fare

Cadets Military Ball Reigns at Fairmont Hotel

By DeVON STANFIELD

The marching cadets of the Air Force ROTC will become the dancing cadets for one night next week when they swoop into the Fairmont hotel for their second annual Military Ball. And small wonder. No less than Freddy Martin and his celebrated 18 piece orchestra are being flown in especially for this gala occasion.

According to Anson Boyd, chairman of the cadet activities committee, the dance promises to be the biggest and gayest affair this tired old school has ever seen. Backing up this thought is fact, for some 600 cadets and their co-pilot dates are expected to be on hand next Thursday night at 9 p.m. when Maestro Martin raises his baton for the first of four hours of extremely danceable music.

The management of the Fairmont, in order not to be caught with their flaps down when this huge air armada comes winging into their Gold Room, have taken suitable measures to insure ample hangar space and runways for the various fox trot and tango maneuvers.

And with as competent and popular a pilot as Freddy Martin at the controls, the music should be "on target" at all times.

No airsickness should be encountered in flight due to bumpy music either, for pilot Martins adept crew will include Personality Vocalist Stuart Wade, Pianist Murray Arnold, and the well known Martin Men.

Oh yes . . . and remember, authorized flying gear for this trip is formals for the girls and uniforms with white shirts and black bow ties for the cadets.
